Nelson Foster raised our course on the Takuan said using

Bud teach to do

martial arts wrong before that ^(Nelson) people didn't notice that - I like Testes

Imobais SEWoodsman teaching his unity of 2 arts. I think John Stevens wrote a book of his

My point is there's always confusion on Bud teaching, offices and justification of killing as well

pre war time + war time Japan people didn't think about it like Schuman I think our consciences evolve - I see confusion in SR's statement but not that not - He says almost some thing - we did not any bug in it - we built without intention but the direction not to kill very important. I don't think SR came late enough to talk about it in clear way like Robert Aiken + That Nat John we all have learned - culture and time we lived.

Only person I know who was clear against war was Soen Nakagawa - he said in a letter to Genzoku, I may be drafted but I'll shoot in the air.

I have deep doubt about these rationalizations - 9 facts with Baqvanika - basically justified violence
